

ABSTRACT

A system and method for aligning an instruction stream is described. The system comprises a rotator logic unit for rotating data bytes of the instruction stream. A shifter logic unit is used for shifting the data bytes to the start of a instruction based upon a length of an immediately prior instruction.